Bubble tea is a delicious drink from Taiwan. It was invented in the 1980s. The drink has tea, milk, and chewy balls called tapioca pearls. These balls are also called "boba." That is why some people call it boba tea.

The tapioca pearls are made from a plant called cassava. They are chewy and a little sweet. You drink bubble tea with a big straw so the pearls can go through. It is fun to chew on the pearls!

There are many flavors of bubble tea. You can get taro, mango, strawberry, or classic milk tea. Some shops let you choose how much sugar you want. You can also pick the ice level.

Bubble tea became popular all over the world. You can find bubble tea shops in America, Europe, and Asia. Young people really love this drink. Some people drink it every day!

Making bubble tea is an art. The pearls must be cooked perfectly. The tea must taste just right. Today, bubble tea is a billion-dollar industry. What started in Taiwan is now enjoyed everywhere!
